

Increased monopolization of the television and radio airwaves has made it nearly impossible for independent voices to be heard. At the same time our major media is being filtered and biased to meet the business and political goals of its small ownership. This kind of corporate control is extremely dangerous to the freedom of the American people.